

In the mean time Moore has said:

1. she never threw a bottle,
2. that it was an accident,
3. that the bottle rolled off the table (with such force as to cause a bruise?),
4. that she accidentally hit the bottle while making a sweeping motion with her arms,
5. that she pounded the bottle against the table and it bounced over at McDaniel.

Our question is -- don't most well-brought-up people apologize when they accidentally cause injury to another? Apparently not, since it appears that in Moore's World they strike again to remove the source of irritation. Is this malice? Is this spiteful? Is this heinous?

Some of the Positive Solutions clique (Bob Miller and Allen Cohen) have accused McDaniel of being the Treasurer of Resident's Voice. She is not. Then they accused her of writing the Voice newsletter. She does not. Positive Solution's loudest spokesperson, Mary Robertson, accused her of filing suit against Moore. She has not. However, a complaint of battery was filed as documented in OC Sheriff's Battery Report 09-038879. But this was not McDaniel's first course of action. The complaint was filed only AFTER Freshley and Paulus called for a Special Meeting to remove McDaniel from the board. And the "gang that couldn't shoot straight" required three attempts to meet all the legal requirements just to call a special meeting. Doesn't that give you a feeling of confidence? These bumlbers are in the majority on Third Board. Paulus supposedly whined to a United resident that he didn't want to vote (to remove McDaniel.) However, it was Paulus who made the motion to remove her. Isn't this totally disingenuous? At least one resident has asked if Paulus knows what perjury is. We wonder if he would be willing to perjure himself in order to belong with the Power group. Perjury is a serious crime.

Virtually everyone who spoke at the special meeting praised (some reluctantly) McDaniel. But the best statements made at the meeting were by Director Feldstein (to board attorney Gary Kessler—"do you have case law to support your position?" No audible response was given.) and by Director Lippert who pointed out that the community is divided and the board reflects the division within the community. Attempts to silence dissent are attempts to disenfranchise the community.

The Positive Solutions Group victimized a victim. Who has been the aggressor at every stage? The President. It is time for her to go. Directors who cannot control their anger and lash out in physical violence need to go. Directors who cover up violence and threats to individuals or the community need to go. It is time. It is past time. It is way past time. What would you call the resignations of Moore, Paulus and Freshley?

A good start !
